

VIEWING RESULTS

Translate search results

TASK: Occasionally you may retrieve records in a language other than your own or your clients' and you need to get a quick translation. ProQuest Dialog™ gives you the ability to do this “on-the-fly”. This translation feature is built into the interface and is provided as a convenience at no additional charge, but is in no way meant to replace human translation.

1. From the Results page click on a title or select records to view. The first record is in French.

2. In the displayed record click Translate.

Note: The Translate link will also display in records where full text is available.

3. From the drop-down lists choose the languages from which and to which you wish to translate. Click Translate. (Shown below).

4. ProQuest Dialog translates the record abstract from the specified language French to English.

Note: You can save the record in its original language only. To retain a copy of the translation you can copy, paste and save it in a word-processing software or use the browser File>Print feature to print it out.

Note 2: This translation feature is built into the interface and is designed to be an "on-the-fly" machine translation of selected content from our databases. This functionality is provided solely for your convenience at no additional charge and is in no way intended to replace human translation.
